By the way, George also likes to be a Native American, best of all a chief.

17

Or a Chinese asking about Georgina in his paddy field.

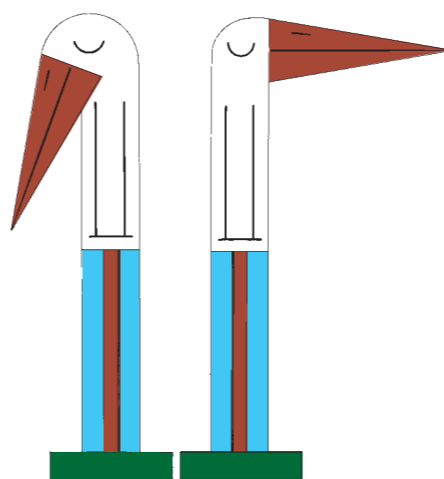

19

Or a parrot wishing for a good life together with a friend.

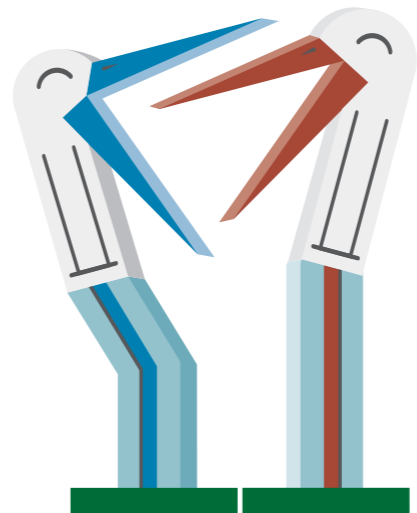

21

If you want to make your own George, all you need is a board that sits on another board. Here you can see his simple shape.

23

Size doesn't matter. Bigger than a hand and smaller than an arm is just fine.

25

But any storks called George or Georgina may look completely different, too. They could be made from anything: tin, clay, plastics, etc.

And they could be bent and crooked as well! Yes, that's perhaps even nicer!

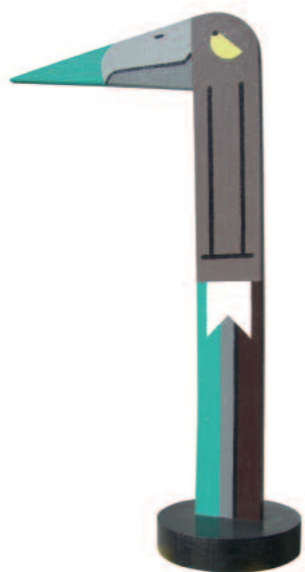

27

Or a penguin, sitting on cold ice and gazing into the distance.

18

Or an eagle in quest of happiness in the sky.

20

Or a musician whistling a love song. And so on ...

He could be anyone!

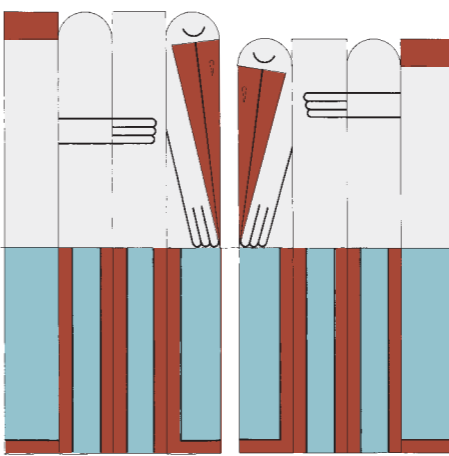

22

If you want to make your own George and Georgina, you will need two rectangular boards. This will make them short and chubby.

24

This is what George and Georgina look like when they are tall and slim, hugging each other. Here you can view them from all sides.

26

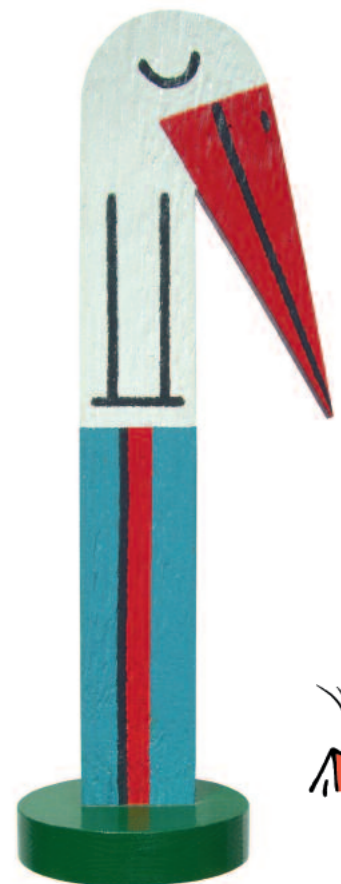

As long as it's obvious that it's THEM!

Georgina, where are you?

The stork game

George is a stork.
And he is in love.
Here, he is waiting for Georgina.

1

While he is looking for her,
he asks anyone he meets if they have seen her and takes a bow.

3

Or he leans on something to dream about Georgina.

5

He exercises to stop thinking about Georgina.

But that doesn't work for long. 7

When George is happy like this,
you can see him
laughing.

George first met Georgina on the beach. He had dozed off, and when he awoke, he was no longer alone.

11

With Georgina, things ran smoothly.
As if life were easy.
And wonderful.

Nothing could happen to them as long as they were together. Together, they could achieve anything.

When George is not waiting, he is looking for her all over the world.

2

He often sits down
to think about how he could find her.

Sometimes, George just lies down and chews on his chewing gum.

6

Here, George
is jumping for joy,
because he knows that some day
he will see Georgina again. 8

8

And all his friends join in.

10

They were soul mates right from the start and got on even without speaking. Each felt what the other wanted to say.

12

George knew right from the start:
They were made for each other.
Their love would last forever.

14

George thought that nothing could ever separate them.
But suddenly, Georgina was gone.
